

Types of Games

A game can be created only using a GIG voucher that contains a valid game coupon. There are two types of games:

1. Individual Game

Only one person participates.
The participant may add vouchers according to the game rules and their own choice.

The same participant is responsible for closing the game once all conditions are met, and the full reward will be awarded to that participant.

2. Shared Game (Up to 7 Participants)

Up to seven people can participate in a shared game.

The person who creates the game (the first voucher depositor) is responsible for closing the game.
After closing, the total reward will be distributed equally among all participants.

In the example shown on the right side, vouchers are placed according to their game coupon position values.

If seven different participants each add one voucher as per the rules, the total reward will be shared equally among them.

If one person adds all seven vouchers, the entire reward will go to that person.

Example total reward: 1,367,356 GIGs.
